

Already cramped and agitated because my flight is delayed, must I be forced to suffer through the intimate details of my neighbor's date the night before or pending divorce during my flight from San Francisco to Chicago? For those who simply must stay in touch, text messaging is available. Let the rest of us weary air travelers have some peace and quiet.